Num. 1336

11. 1334.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.
Vienna, Sept. 15. O. S.

HE Court has receiv'd the important News that a Peace is concluded between Russia and the Porte, and that the Preliminaries were sign'd on the 7th Instant in the Grand Vizier's Camp between the said Minister and Kanofchi, who was for that End furnish'd with the Czarina's full Powers, and is the same Person that was with the Grand Vizier when the Preliminaries were sign'd between the Emperor and the Porte. Those that relate to Russia are not yet made publick, but we are assured they are in Substance as follows, 'That Asoph shall be demolish'd, That the Treaty of Pruth shall be confirmed; That Russia shall be satisfy'd with regard to the Incursions of the Tartars; That proper Methods should be taken to prevent its being expos'd to them for the future; that there shall be a new Regulation of the Limits of the Russian and Turkish Dominions, and that a Congress shall be assembled for signing the definitive Treaty of Peace by the Plenipotentiaries of the Emperor, the Czarina, and the Porte.' The Russian Minister here has been very constant of late at Court, where he has had a long Conference with the Count de Sintzendorf upon the Negotiations with the Porte. 'Tis certain, that the Grand Vizier has offer'd a Million of Ducats to prevent the Demolition of the Works of the Citadel of Belgrade. The Populace of this City are at length return'd to their Duty, but the Authors of the Tumult will be punish'd.

The Emperor has sent a Letter to his Ministers at the foreign Courts, wherein he declares the Counts de Wallis and Neuperg guilty of High Crimes, and enters very particularly into all the Faults committed by the former in the Field, and by the latter in the Conclusion of the Preliminaries. It says in particular, 'That Count Wallis, tho' he had Orders to march towards the Morava, stay'd so long till the Turks made themselves Masters of Semendria, to which all the Misfortune of the Campaign has been owing; That his long Stay without Necessity in the Lines of Belgrade, was the Reason that the Horse suffered very much; That notwithstanding the Orders that were sent to him not to attack the Enemy before he had assembled all his Army, he rashly engaged in the Action at Krotzka without having any other Troops with him besides 18 Companies of Grenadiers and Horse; That the Troops were disposed upon this Occasion contrary to all the Rules of War, because they were led on to the Attack before they had Time to form themselves; That the Bravery of the Troops and the Valour with which the Infantry stopp'd the impetuous Torrent of the Enemy, are a plain Demonstration that the ill Success of the Action at Krotzka is not to be imputed to them, but only to the General who commanded them; That the painful Marches which the Army has been put upon since have completely ruin'd it; That the Relations and Letters of Count Wallis have always been full of Contradiction and Obscurity; That having been furnish'd with a Full-power to treat of a Peace, he behav'd so ill in that respect that it was thought necessary to appoint the Count de Neuperg in his Room; That General Wallis of his own Head sent the Count de Gros to the Grand Vizier's Camp, and charg'd him with Commissions which could not but be disadvantageous to Belgrade; and That he has in his Letters since that Time exaggerated the ill State of Things, and in the strongest Terms insisted on the Necessity of sacrificing it.

That the Count de Neuperg is as much to blame as the Count de Wallis, because in the Orders or Instructions that were sent to him, he was directed in the clearest Manner how he should behave, if there was no Possibility of saving Belgrade; in which Case he was charged to procure certain Advantages for the Security of the Emperor's Hereditary Dominions; but he has behav'd so contrary to all his Orders, that he could never produce One in his Justification: That he went to the Turks Camp without Leave from his Imperial Majesty, without giving him any Advice of it, and without so much as desiring Hostages for the Security of his Person: That during all the Time he stay'd with the Grand Vizier, he sent no Account of the State of the Negotiation, either to the Emperor, or to the Council of War, under the frivolous Pretence of giving Umbrage to the Grand Vizier: That General Suckaw having notify'd that Belgrade might hold out to the End of September, if the Army advanc'd to Semlin, at the same Time that Count Wallis said the Place was left without Remedy, the Count de Neuperg was immediately inform'd of what the former said, that he might regulate himself; but that all these Precautions having not prevented the Faults that were committed, the Emperor has good Reason to impute them entirely to those Two Generals, &c.

The Publick considering the above Charge upon the Count de Neuperg, knows not how to reconcile it with the News that he is to be the First Plenipotentiary of the Emperor for the Consummation of the Work of Peace. All these Things confound the Ideas of those People who argue upon the present Events, the Consequence of which is a Multitude of Stories that are false or contradictory.

Belgrade, Sept. 9. O. S. On the 18th the Peace with the Turks was sign'd here in Form, by the Counts de Wallis and Neuperg, and General Schmettau, who had the Full Powers for that Purpose, in the Name of the Emperor; and by the Grand Vizier, the Basba intended for the Government of this City, the Aga of the Janizaries, and several other General Officers of the Ottoman Army, in the Name of the Grand Seigneur. The Grand Vizier, and the Marquis de Villeneuve, who also sign'd the Treaty, as Ambassador Extraordinary in the Mediation of France, set out Yesterday for Constantinople, and are to be follow'd by the Six Hostages, who are not to be sent back till the Turks are put in full Possession of this City.

Warsaw, Sept. 14. O. S. Just now we hear, that the Velt Marshal de Munich, who was on the March with the Russian Army towards Wallachia, is to return forthwith over the Niester into the Ukraine, the rather because the Peace betwixt Russia and the Porte is settled. We have Advice at the same time, that Choczim was to be surrendered to the Turks by virtue of the Articles of the Peace.

Naples, Sept. 4. O. S. It does not appear that this Court has yet come to any Resolution touching the Differences between the Crowns of Spain and Great Britain. Every thing remains in its former Situation; there is no manner of Talk of augmenting the Forces, and there is no Motion making that looks like a Design to take any Part in the War if one should happen to break out betwixt the Powers above-mention'd.

Rome, Sept. 8. O. S. The Chevalier de St. George and his two Sons set out on the 3d to go and spend the Autumn at Albano, having thought fit to leave the City some Days sooner than usual, for fear of the Small-pox which is at this time very fatal here.
